EMEA investors are rapidly adopting (fixed income) ETFs

As ETFs celebrate over two decades in Europe, their advantages are being recognized by investors across the spectrum. Nowhere is this more true than with fixed income.

ETF growth in Europe over the last three years has outpaced that of mutual funds by a factor of 15. Furthermore, fixed income ETFs continue to grow faster than their corresponding fixed income mutual funds.

ETFs address important needs for fixed income investors

- ETFs offer investors an intuitive way to gain access to instant and diversified allocations of bonds.
- They trade efficiently on an open exchange, and no minimum investment levels or additional costs.
- They offer greater levels of transparency than traditional mutual funds and are priced continuously throughout each trading day.

Fixed income ETFs are growing faster than equity ETFs – and faster than their fixed income mutual fund peers.

PIMCO’s innovative approach has made it one of EMEA’s largest ETF managers

PIMCO aims to deliver its fixed income expertise in whatever form makes most sense for its clients – and increasingly that means ETFs.

- PIMCO’s active ETFs are powered by the same portfolio manager teams, broad and deep credit resources, proprietary analytics, and risk management that are used to manage PIMCO’s $1.88 tn in assets under management (as of 30 June 2024).

PIMCO’s smart passive ETFs

- PIMCO’s smart index construction is designed to reduce transaction costs and be representative, relevant, and sustainable – minimizing unnecessary portfolio turnover, identifying more cost-effective exposures, and avoiding bonds that are credit-impaired.
- PIMCO’s risk factor optimization recreates indices intelligently and cost-effectively using proprietary analytics.
- PIMCO’s execution capabilities minimize transaction costs, while cash creations and redemptions allow for additional flexibility and liquidity beyond traditional in-kind creations and redemptions.

ETFs are not passive by nature and active bond management has a history of outperformance

The persistent underperformance of active equity funds over the last ten years explains much of the growing preference for passive equity investments—and passive equity ETFs. But the story with bonds is different:

- Fixed income indices are generally far larger than equity indices, with less-liquid underlying securities. After factoring in trading costs and fees, passive fixed income ETFs virtually guarantee underperformance in their attempt to “mirror” their indices. Smart index construction represents an attempt to improve on pure passive exposures and mitigate trading costs.
- Because bond markets and bond indices are far less efficient than their equity peers, active approaches have a potentially better chance to deliver index-beating returns in fixed income. In fact, across the major bond categories, 65% of active fixed income funds (including active ETFs) outperformed their passive peers, net of fees, over the last 10 years. For equities, the corresponding number is 27%.

Figure 3: Percentage of active funds within each category that outperformed the passive median fund (10-year horizon)

Source: PIMCO and Morningstar Direct. As of 30 June 2024. For illustrative purposes only.

Past performance is not a guarantee nor a reliable indicator of future performance. Outperformance does not necessarily mean positive performance.

Note that in the case of some categories, the percentage of active funds that outperform the median passive fund is lower than the percentage of active funds that outperform their primary prospective benchmarks. The explanation for this is the range of benchmarks included in Morningstar categories. Some categories (such as Intermediate-Term Bond) contain funds with largely the same prospectus benchmark; others, such as Short-Term Bond, contain funds with a range of benchmarks. Based on Morningstar U.S. Fund categories (Institutional shares only). * Combines the Morningstar U.S. Fund Intermediate Core and Core-Plus categories. Risks

There are risks involved in making investments into collective investment schemes, the following risks are relevant to an investment into Funds:

Investing in the bond market is subject to risks, including market, interest rate, issuer, credit, inflation risk, and liquidity risk. The value of most bonds and bond strategies are impacted by changes in interest rates. Bonds and bond strategies with longer durations tend to be more sensitive and volatile than those with shorter durations; bond prices generally fall as interest rates rise, and the current low interest rate environment increases this risk. Current reductions in bond counterparty capacity may contribute to decreased market liquidity and increased price volatility. Bond investments may be worth more or less than the original cost when redeemed. Equities may decline in value due to both real and perceived general market, economic and industry conditions. Investing in foreign-denominated and/or -domiciled securities may involve heightened risk due to currency fluctuations, and economic and political risks, which may be enhanced in emerging markets. Investing in foreign denominated and/or domiciled securities may involve heightened risk due to currency fluctuations, and economic and political risks, which may be enhanced in emerging markets. Currency rates may fluctuate significantly over short periods of time and may reduce the returns of a portfolio. High-yield, lower-rated, securities involve greater risk than higher-rated securities; portfolios that invest in them may be subject to greater levels of credit and liquidity risk than portfolios that do not. Sovereign securities are generally backed by the issuing government, obligations of U.S. Government agencies and authorities are supported by varying degrees but are generally not backed by the full faith of the U.S. Government; portfolios that invest in such securities are not guaranteed and will fluctuate in value. Mortgage and asset-backed securities may be sensitive to changes in interest rates, subject to early repayment risk, and while generally supported by a government, government-agency or private guarantor there is no assurance that the guarantor will meet its obligations. Entering into short sales includes the potential for loss of more money than the actual cost of the investment, and the risk that the third party to the short sale may fail to honor its contract terms, causing a loss to the portfolio. Derivatives may involve certain costs and risks such as liquidity, interest rate, market, credit, management and the risk that a position could not be closed when most advantageous. Investing in derivatives could lose more than the amount invested. Diversification does not ensure against loss.

ESG Investment Risk

At PIMCO, we define ESG Integration as the consistent consideration of material ESG factors into our investment research process to enhance our clients' risk-adjusted returns. Material ESG factors may include but are not limited to: climate change risks, social inequality, shifting consumer preferences, regulatory risks, talent management or misconduct at an issuer, among others. We recognize that ESG factors are increasingly essential inputs when evaluating global economies, markets, industries and business models. Material ESG factors are important considerations when evaluating long-term investment opportunities and risks for all asset classes in both public and private markets. Integrating ESG factors into the evaluation process does not mean that ESG information is the sole or primary consideration for an investment decision; instead, PIMCO's portfolio managers and analyst teams evaluate and weigh a variety of financial and non-financial factors, which can include ESG considerations, to make investment decisions. The relevance of ESG considerations to investment decisions varies across asset classes and strategies. The Fund's ESG investing strategy may select or exclude securities of certain issuers for reasons other than financial performance. Such strategy carries the risk that the Fund's performance will differ from similar funds that do not utilize an ESG investing strategy. For example, the application of this strategy could affect the Fund's exposure to certain sectors or types of investments, which could negatively impact the Fund's performance.

There is no guarantee that the factors utilized by the Investment Advisor will reflect the opinions of any particular investor, and the factors utilized by the Investment Advisor may differ from the factors that any particular investor considers relevant in evaluating an issuer's ESG practices.

Future ESG development and regulation may impact the Fund's implementation of its investment strategy. In addition, there may be cost implications arising from ESG related due diligence, increased reporting and use of third-party ESG data providers.
